Deep Domain And Functional Expertise

As a service rendering company, we understand and appreciate the need to develop both domain and functional expertise.

Our Domain expertise is the deep-rooted knowledge acquired both in the technical and business aspects of the services we render, including the technology, the industry, and the market.

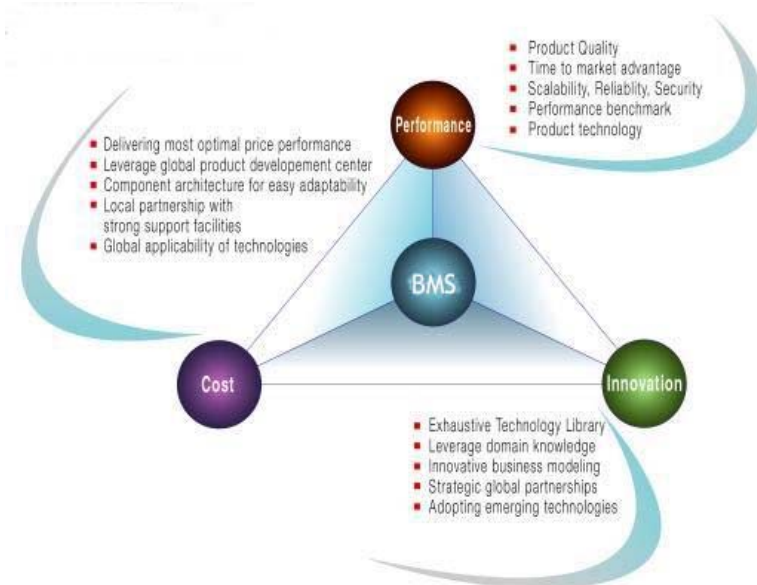

Our Functional expertise is our ability in executing techniques, processes and tasks that rigidly aims at creating winning services.

Domain expertise, more so, is gained with the experience of having worked in a particular industry, while functional expertise is one that can be taught.

We typically hire people who have the relevant domain expertise to train our employees to develop functional expertise.

We also recognize the values of training and view it as a way to improve employee performance. Training is a very effective means to acquire the accumulated experience of others and it also helps to establish a baseline for attaining functional expertise.

Our well-trained and experienced staff has in-depth understanding of the health care industry, and this in turn helps us provide value-added services.
